

$O(N!)$

Factorial Complexity

$O(N!)$

The big idea:

Factorial Complexity occurs when every possible solution to a problem may have to be calculated for the correct output to be determined. An example of this would be a brute force solution to the traveling salesperson problem - where the shortest possible route between a series of locations has to be determined.