

$O(N)$

Linear Complexity

$O(N)$

The big idea:

As the size of the input grows the processing time required by the algorithm will grow at the same pace. N represents the size of the input.

$O(N)$ is somewhat efficient. No matter how big the constant is or how slow the linear increase is, at some point the linear algorithm will have a longer runtime

